According to legend, back in 832 AD, when the Scottish and English armies faced each other in battle, the Scottish King prayed to St Andrew for help. Seeing a cloud in the shape of the saltire on which St Andrew had been crucified (X-shaped) against a clear blue sky, the king vowed that if the Scots were victorious, St. Andrew would be made the patron saint of Scotland. The Scots won the battle; the king fulfilled his promise; and the intervention of St. Andrew has been represented on the Scottish flag ever since. It is reputedly the oldest national flag in Europe. The saltire cross was later incorporated into the Union Flag of the UK, and the date of November 30th was chosen for Scots to celebrate the best of Scottish culture and cuisine....and to go on the annual haggis hunt!

So, on behalf of Lakeside Hash House Harriers,

E&B and Cooch

Invite you to this annual Scottish-ish Lakeside tradition.

Those who find the haggis will receive the great reward of eating it!

Dress Code: Outfits befitting haggis-hunting in the highlands and lowlands of the cities of Yarra & Booroondara.
